TELSTAR GRIDDERS HOLDING DOUBLE TRAINING SESSIONS

The Telstar Regional High School football coaching staff greeted well over two dozen candidates on August 12th to begin pre season practices. With the assistance of Dr. Loy S. Harrell, Dr. John W. Trinward, and school nurse Mrs. Suzanne Bartlett, the candidates were promptly processed for physical examinations and mouthguards; then they immediately began double session training periods.

The team is led by newly-elected co-captains, Jim Johnson and Alan Remington. Johnson is a 145 pound senior halfback who possesses the qualities of good speed, agility, and coordination. Remington, also a senior, weighs 150 pounds and is slated for backfield duty at fullback. He is extremely powerful and an aggressive ball player.

Joining Johnson and Remington in the backfield are two fullbacks, hard running senior Alan Howe weighing 160 pounds and frosh Don Luxton. The halfback slots will be backed with sophomores, John Trinward at 145 pounds and Ed Bennett at 140 pounds. Trinward is an extremely aggressive ball player while Bennett possesses the ability to be an effective blocker. One promising freshman is 145 pound Ronnie Deegan who is especially hard working offensively and defensively. The halfback slots are rounded out with freshman Ralph Swan, 120 pounds; Ross Timberlake, 135 pounds; and Bob Tift, 145 pounds.

At quarterback there seems to be a good duel for a starting nod between two juniors, Doug Farrar and Tom Remington. Remington is a good signal caller and an accurate passer; Farrar is a hard-nosed ball player who possesses a good deal of speed.

The end positions will be filled by sophomores Lee Frazier who is 155 pounds and has good speed and Jeff Carver, 145 pounds and an aggressive player. Frosh Dana Melville who is 145 pounds and a potentially outstanding pass receiver and 135 pound Curt Cole, another promising freshman are also ends. The tackles are led by junior Mike Inman, an outstanding 205 pound blocker and the aggressive tackler, Junior Preston Merrill at 165 pounds. Also a tackle is 190 pound Jim Thurston. They all seem more than capable of holding their own against a big opponent. Sophomore Herby Ring, 160 pounds, and freshman Dan Wheeler, 180 pounds, round out the tackle candidates.

The guard slots will be held down by newly acquired senior Doug Bennett, 165 pounds, and Junior Terry Swan, both hard hitting ball players. Sophomore Charlie Smith, 180 pounds, is an especially hard working yeoman offensively and defensively and should see a great deal of action. Another sophomore, 150 pound Bill Savage although light is extremely fast and aggressive. Frosh Kurt Vail, 140 pounds, will also see action at the guard slot.

The center position will be held down by two capable ball handlers, 190 pound Junior Brian Stowell and freshman Clyde Crockett, 165 pounds. Both are working hard to fill a starting berth. Valuable assistance is given to the coaches and the team by manager Ricky Seames, an aspiring athletic trainer.

Telstar's first opponent will be Mexico High School on Sept. 7, at the Gould Academy field.

WORKING STUDENTS MAY BE ENTITLED TO TAX REFUND

Students who were employed part-time during the year or worked full time during the summer may be entitled to a refund on their 1968 Federal Income tax return, Whitney L. Wheeler, District Director of Internal Revenue for Maine, has advised.

Director Wheeler also stated that students are required to file an income tax return if they earned $600 or more during 1968. If they earned less than $600 and taxes were withheld from their wages by the employer, they must file a return to obtain a refund of the tax withheld from their wages.

Unmarried students who earn less than $800 will not owe any Federal income tax. They are entitled to claim the usual $600 personal exemption plus a $300 minimum standard deduction, but they will still have to file a tax return to obtain a refund of any tax withheld on their wages.

Students should be sure to obtain a W-2 Form from their employers to be attached to their tax return when filed. If they will be residing at a different address from the one used during their temporary employment, their employer should be advised where to mail the W-2 Form when issued.

Even though a student claims entitlement to a personal exemption when filing a tax return, his (or her) parents who provide more than one-half the cost of support for a full-time student may also claim him (or her) as an exemption on their tax return, unless the student is married and is filing a joint return.

You can write
at home
if you have a Casco
checking account.

That's right. If you add Bancardchek to a regular Casco checking account, we add a cash reserve of $500 or more to your checking account balance. Then, if you should wish to borrow all or part of your cash reserve, you simply sit down and write out a check for the amount you need. No one knows you are borrowing except you and the bank. The loan is repaid automatically on a monthly basis from your checking account. Or if you wish, you may pay off the balance at any time. Either way, you pay for only the amount of money you use for the time you use it. Yes, Casco offers you the simplest and most private way to borrow money. And this is just one of many reasons why our customers say — "At Casco Bank & Trust they're always thinking... about us."

GREENWOOD CITY

Mrs. Clyde Morgan, Corres. — "I like to get out in the open outdoors neath the blue of the sky" (C. S. Kinnison)

So on a clear bracing day one mid-afternoon I ventured into the quiet of the woods. I had no planned course, just traveled onward in no great haste.

I left the lowlands and sunlight, following twisted trails worn down by the deer and moose. Their tracks in places of moisture were fresh from recent travel. One could easily believe these trails, thin brown, sun flecked lines, were planned and made by man, so easily were they to follow.

There was the soft sigh of the wind and the rhythm of the shadows weaving across the trails; new land to me with its vigor and greatness, our heritage, our badge of freedom.

Twice I flushed partridges from their perch by the trail, startling at first, as their whirr came so unexpectedly.

At one point a black shadow careened across the ground, then repeated again and yet again; crows riding the wind aloof and proud.

Leaving the trails now for the groves of hemlock, I enjoyed their carpets beneath, so soft and quiet.

Centered in a small opening stood a leafless apple tree with its gnarled branches reaching up like stiff digits of a drowning hand. I wondered why, here on this secluded hillside,

At the foot of a ridge, I paused to scan the dark edge of the timber above and noticed an enormous toadstool between two trees, very fascinating, and the largest I had ever seen. Examining it closely I found a colony of tiny ants living, probably, within the dead tree but using this spacious "stool" for a meeting or a summer outing; They hurried and scurried when I poked around their "stool" extending no welcome. I wished I could carry this big treasure home, a perfect background for a painting for the artist of the family. I could not budge it, but still hope that some day armed with my hatchet I may again find it.

Higher up I rested in a small baylike recess in a ridge which made a perfect shelter from the wind.

The sunlight lower now in the west threw long waves of light across everything. Glancing at my watch I found I had traveled some over an hour; so must turn back down the hills.

Two hours and twenty minutes by my watch since I started out but to me as I had walked on and on it was timeless, like the flowing of a mountain stream. But timeless or other wise in reality I had arrived at my "little pocket among the hills" where I picked up my note which I had left with some information as to my plans, entered and prepared the evening meal.

Yes, I was hungry!

I heard a deer from the brush and saw the fresh tracks but did not see him. I pictured him looking at me with a frozen round eyed interest before he ran away in skimming bounds leaving the softest of sounds behind. I'm sure deep in his translucent eyes there would have been the everlasting wilderness, the never ending vigil of nature.

I crossed several small ravines two of which had trickles of water even with no rains through July and half of August; spring fed from higher up. Following one down I came to an arch of stones, an old piece of metal, and a length of funnel, which again started me wondering — why? and here in this thickly wooded section! My problem was answered in this way when I described it at home. "Some forty-five or fifty years ago that section was a maple grove. We built an arch and made syrup there. You couldn't have gone that far!"

Then I emerged into a desolate spot of great boulders all about, from huge rocks farther up, where they had been weathered by the winter snows and summer rains.

Now again my twisted trails were leading me out into the sunlight through shadows in which the old scent of the wilderness forever lay. Through the tree gaps, I caught glimpses of bright sparkles; sunlight on the pond.

Another twenty minutes and I was at home. The winds, the greatest of all travelers, greeted me from over the water as I crossed my lawn.

Two hours and twenty minutes by my watch since I started out but to me as I had walked on and on it was timeless, like the flowing of a mountain stream. But timeless or other wise in reality I had arrived at my "little pocket among the hills" where I picked up my note which I had left with some information as to my plans, entered and prepared the evening meal.

Oh valley road! O winding road, Without beginning, ending — You hold for seeking souls the gift Of peace, with beauty blending. (S. A. Heinzerling)

This must have been animal week in Greenwood City. Some two miles back on a wood road near Sanborn River Frank Curtis left his car and thought he'd look inside an old tractor house built about 20 years ago. As he came around from one side in back of an open door to enter the house he met a good sized bear deciding to leave. They met in the door way but Mr. Bear didn't stop to say "Excuse me," "He just shot by!" Frank said. As for Frank? Well, he continued on inside and found where Mr. Bruin had been resting in the sand and gravel.

'Coons have really destroyed the corn at Bernard Morgan's. David Holt and Gary Inman captured two but its too late now to save the corn. David's mother said "I'll help tonight" but when her brother, Clyde, told her he'd bring up the gun she refused.

On the road to Norway one evening the Holt family came upon a moose in the road. He loped along ahead of them keeping the road and setting the speed for a half mile or more.

Two fawns, so lovely and beautiful, were in Clyde Morgan's beans having a late breakfast Saturday when he went to the garden. He said, "If I had had a gun and even though they were destroying my beans I never could have hurt them. I wish I had had a camera for they came directly toward me. One especially kept coming nearer and would hold up his little leg, tip his head and look. He didn't leave until I moved toward him."

Some people say we'd better give the land back to the Indians, we don't have to. The animals have taken it over.
